CALL FOR PAPER FOR SPECIAL SESSION ON

COMPUTATIONAL INTELLIGENCE APPLICATIONS FOR DATA SCIENCE

AIM and OBJECTIVE

Computational Intelligence (CI) has been considered as an offshoot of artificial intelligence (AI) and consists of various tools like fuzzy logic, neural networks, genetic algorithms, belief networks, chaos theory and many hybrid models have also been proposed. Data science basically generalize the extraction of knowledge from data by incorporating different elements, techniques and theories from many fields like probability models, machine learning, computer programming, statistics, data engineering, signal processing, pattern recognition and learning, visualization, uncertainty modelling, etc. One of the most relevant techniques that has contributed to the Data Science is Computational Intelligence whose tools and techniques mainly deals with imprecision, uncertainty, learning, and evolution, in posing and solving computational problems. Therefore, many proposals have been published showing the validity of Computational Intelligence to achieve the goals of Data Science.
